Handwritten text in Persian script, appearing to be a historical document or manuscript. The text is dense and difficult to decipher due to fading and bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. It contains several lines of text, possibly including names, dates, and administrative or legal content. The script is a cursive style typical of historical Persian manuscripts.

Handwritten text in Persian script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is densely packed and appears to be a continuous narrative or record. The script is cursive and characteristic of the Safavid or Qajar periods. The document is heavily stained and shows signs of age, with some ink bleed-through from the reverse side. The text is written in a single column, filling most of the page area.
